

NEW

Some people just get a student loan.

How I found a job after graduation

Recommend 1.3k Tweet 84 Share 2 +1 17 Email Print

In-person communication and confidence

7 of 7 << BACK NEXT >>

Kristi Bielewicz, 22

College: Arizona State University
Degree: Bachelors in Communications
Current job: Content developer at Zion & Zion

COURTESY: NIDOLE ELLIS

How I got my job: I started out as an intern and was offered a job after graduation. I love the people I work with and the agency's feel. I get to interact with everyone at the agency; we bounce ideas off of each other.

Advice for current students and recent grads: In-person communication is vital. You have to be confident and you have to own it.

Get an internship, it doesn't matter if it's paid or unpaid. If you don't have experience on your resume you are going to be put to the bottom of the pile. You might not get your dream job out of college -- you have to be open to the idea of working your way up.

NEXT

College

College degrees with the best bang for your buck
Some four-year degrees offer a much a better return on investment than graduate degrees do.

5 steps to find (and keep) young stars

Colleges with the best return on investment

I had 10 jobs before 25

Some people just get a student loan.

Mortgage & Savings Center

Mortgages Insurance Credit Cards CDs