Architekton: Zion & Zion

September 30, 2014

The new 10,800 SF Zion & Zion office is an architectural manifestation of where work meets play. Diversity and integration are expressed in the use of material and architectural styles in the space. An eclectic mix of traditional wood, modern steel and glass create a playful, but elegant approach to the overall design. Wood slats created from re-purposed, prefabricated door sills take on an organic sensibility against the more machined look of finished wood paneling.

Programmatically, the offices are designed to allow creativity to happen anywhere and take any form: whether it's the formality of a closed-door client meeting, the casual in-house team jam session, or spontaneous inspiration with clients and colleagues over a game of pool.

The convergence of project workroom and game room create "The Intersect". "The Arena" offers both small group meetings all the way to large presentation space with its operable glass partitions and tiered wood seating.
